PRESS RELEASE

Like Minded People: Announcing the dates for 2010

The first Like Minded People in 2008, was founded by Stewart Noakes, Henry Massey, Daniel Gould, David Rogers, Mark Burgess, Ibe Akoh and Simon Fox to create a sustainable long-term network of entrepreneurs.

The group wanted to start an informal networking event targeted at people who possess an entrepreneurial spirit. The familiar traits in the attendees have resulted in inspiring ideas and partnerships.

Like Minded People centres on the idea of shared knowledge and helping out your peers in a unique way, which is reflected in the 'show and tell' presentations which take place on the day and through the LinkedIn group in which help is offered either on the day or as an after-thought.

These networking events are targeted at bringing together people of a like mind, who can help each other with knowledge, ideas, information, contacts and opportunities. It's a friendly affair, with no hard sells and is full of open discussion and sharing. It is an ideal platform from which you can gain high level advice, feedback and constructive ideas. The network is predominantly made up of entrepreneurs and people that possess an entrepreneurial spirit.

It is not only an opportunity to meet with other entrepreneurs but a chance for you to use the show and tell arena to ask for help and guidance from a peer group that have the expertise to help you progress with your project/idea.

We look forward to seeing you at future Like Minded People events!

'Like Minded People has proven to be a fun, useful, stimulating and learning experience. I had never expected it to take on such a life of its own, but it is great to see how it has. The network will continue as long as people get so much from it, and it supports itself as it has been doing.'
